Civilian Readiness to Adopt E-Filing Services as Preparation for a "New-Normal" in Tax Reporting During the Global Covid-19 Pandemic in Indonesia

Damar Kristanto[a], Bani Alkausar[b], Yanuar Nugroho[c], Rahmat Yuliawan[d], [a,b,c,d]Faculty of Vocational Studies, Universitas Airlangga, Indonesia, Email: [a]damar-kristanto@vokasi.unair.ac.id, [b]bani-alkausar@vokasi.unair.ac.id, [c]yanuar.nugroho@vokasi.unair.ac.id, [d]rahmat.yuliawan@vokasi.unair.ac.id

The implementation of e-government faces many problems especially in the field of taxation. The e-filing system itself is still not fully accepted by taxpayers. On the other hand, Covid-19 also has had an impact on tax services. The purpose of this study is not only to explain one's perception in adopting but also to see the readiness of citizens in tax reporting through SPT e-filing in Indonesia. The survey was conducted in several tax service offices in Indonesia. The total sample obtained in this study was 483 respondents. The result shows that the citizen of Indonesia are not ready to accept e-filing because it is still considered confusing and risky. In the future, e-filing tax reporting services will become mandatory, inevitably forcing the public to grow accustomed to using e-filing services as part of the new normal in social life. Comprehensive Development and Requirements for Economic Success in Iraq: An Analytical Study

Abaas Asfore Lafta[a], Abbas Makki Hamzah[b], Ahmed Ibrahim Mahdi Alzurfi[c], [a,b,c]Faculty of Administration and Economics, University of Kufa, Najaf, Iraq, Email: abbasa.shomary@uokufa.edu.iq (mailto:abbasa.shomary@uokufa.edu.iq), abbasm.hamza@uokufa.edu.iq (mailto:abbasm.hamza@uokufa.edu.iq), ahmadi.mahdi@uokfa.edi.iq (mailto:ahmadi.mahdi@uokfa.edi.iq)

This study highlights the possibility of achieving comprehensive development in Iraq and the requirements of success for the Iraqi economy through a deductive analytical approach. In spite of negative contracts that were passed in Iraq and the devastation that resulted in the Iraqi economy, there is cause for great optimism in achieving economic renaissance. The results of the study reveal that this optimism is because of a number of components and supports, including the great potential and the existence of a rich natural and human resource base that gives Iraq the ability to achieve a real economic renaissance. In addition, the development of scientific approaches can help in utilising these capabilities and resources. The results also indicate the existence of sincere responsible authorities who are able to mobilise and assemble appropriate plans and policies to achieve the supreme goal of the Iraqi economy, and the need to do this amidst newly industrialised economies away from the dangers of a backward mono economy. Knowledge and Competence of Barangay Health Workers (BHWS)

Maria Visitacion M. Taburnal[a], [a]College of Health Sciences, Camarines Sur Polytechnic Colleges, Nabua, Camarines Sur, Philippines, Email: [a]marvimirastaburnal@yahoo.com (mailto:marvimirastaburnal@yahoo.com)

Health is an indispensable element of living in the community. Barangay health workers (BHWs) provide healthcare services that meet the health needs of their constituents in their barangay. They motivate people to live a clean and healthy life. Core skills, applied knowledge and a good attitude are vital for these BHWs to complete their jobs effectively and efficiently. The goal of this study is to evaluate their competence. The descriptive-correlational method was used with a self-made questionnaire as the main data gathering tool. Purposive sampling through total enumeration was used to determine the participants. Data was analysed through the percentage technique, weighted mean, and chi-square test for independence. Results revealed that BHWs are moderately competent, with a satisfactory rating on attitude; personal and environmental factors affect have an impact on their competence. The length of service as a BHW was to be found significant in the competence of BHWs. To be well-equipped with knowledge and skills, BHWs are encouraged to continuously attend training and seminars and use the self-learning kit. Pages 1301 to 1320

Assessing the Concept of a Civil Partnership for Notaries in Indonesia

Annisa Angraini Daulay[a], FX. Joko Priyono[b], R. Benny Riyanto[c], [a,b,c]Faculty of Law, Diponegoro University,

A shift regarding notaries which was originally banned is now allowed after Indonesia has developed its own regulations related to the position. Only a few notaries form a partnership in Indonesia's implementation. This differs from notaries in the Netherlands, where the majority work in co-operation with other professions. The purpose of this research is to investigate the concept of a Civil Partnership of notaries in Indonesia and the nature of the concept. . The research method consists of s normative / doctrinal legal research which using three (3) approaches: statue, historical. comparative, as well as interviews. The research results indicate that Civil Partnership for notaries essential provides efficiency that can increase notaries' 's welfare in order to obtain a proper office and improve legal services. The current concept is only limited to a shared office, in terms of office management but not work, considering the fact that notaries works individually. Pages 1321 to 1328

The Mediating Role of Competitive Strategy: Cost Leadership and Differentiation in the Effect of Managerial Perception of Marketing Performance in Disaster Tourism

Badaruddin[a*], Nasir[b], Hizir Sofyan[c], Hasan Basri[d], Nurdasila[e], [a]Doctoral Program student of Management Science, Universitas Syiah Kuala Banda Aceh and Lecturer of Economic and Business Faculty of Serambi Mekkah Banda Aceh, [b]Lecturer at Doctoral Program in Management Science Universitas Syiah Kuala, Banda Aceh, [c]Department of Statistic Syiah Kuala universitas Banda Aceh Indonesia, [d,e]Lecturer at Doctoral Program in Management Science universitas Syiah Kuala, Banda Aceh, Email: [a*]badar.manajemen@gmail.com (mailto:badar.manajemen@gmail.com)

The purpose of this research is to test the influence of competitive strategy: cost leadership, differentiation, and impact on the dependent variable managerial perception of marketing. This study is also related to disaster tourism and is carried out to establish how to increase tourism in ACEH. Hypotheses (H1) testing results with a single sample test of the examined variables showed a significance relationship which was far from 0.05. The results of the research show the variable Co-Creation Tourism Value Proposition, Tourism Market Orientation, and Competitive Strategy: Cost Leadership, differentiation, and Managerial Perception of Marketing Performance can be said to be significant. The subsequent results of independent variable influence and variable intervening are very significant to the performance of dependent variables and independent variables and highly significant interventions. Either indirect hypothesis testing to see the influence of Co-creation value on Managerial Perception of Marketing Performance, through competitive strategies, directly or indirectly, raises a partial mediation role for the variable competitive strategy. Key words: Notary, Civil Partnership

Introduction

Notary is a profession that is still in great demand (Kunni Afifah, 2017:147-161). The number of notaries in Indonesia has increased annually. In early 2010, The Minister of Law and Human Rights inaugurated around two thousand new Notaries placed throughout Indonesia. In 2016, the estimated number of notaries throughout Indonesia was more than 17,000. This number will continue to increase annually .

The annual increase of the number of notaries coupled with increasingly complex social problems that require notary services give opportunities to notaries to establish a civil partnership of notaries. The intention is for some public notaries to establish an office together with the ordinances governed by the notary. It is possible for a notary to establish a civil federation of notaries, e because the establishment of a notary civil federation has been legally governed.

Introduction

It is not possible to ignore experiences in developing countries that adopt a developmental approach to simulate what exists in countries of the developed world and in particular the economic plans that are undertaken for the purpose of expanding development within economic, social and political dimensions. These trends have passed through a number of mature economic policies to meet the needs of the reality in the economies of these countries. Iraq has been trying for several decades to overcome the economic ordeal that has passed through successive wars and several political and economic changes. Despite these difficulties, economic and political decision-makers in Iraq hope to harness all the material and human
