Dear Yasumaru San,
Yonago Acta Medica

How are you? I hope you are in good health and still working in YAM.
I would like to submit a manuscript to Yonago Acta Medica. Is it possible to submit the m.s. by email, or should by online submission?
By the way, YAM is currently indexed in PubMed and Scopus, isn't it?
Thank you.

Sincerely,
Udin

Dear Udin,

Thank you for contacting us.
I am Yoko, and I succeeded her position.

To answer your question, Yanago Acta Medica is participating in PubMed and PubMed Central, but not in Scopus.

By the way, have you ever worked in Tottori University Faculty of Medicine?

Currently, contributors to Yonago Acta Medica are limited to members of Tottori University Faculty of Medicine and allied institutions. Researchers outside the University community can also submit papers on the recommendation of a professor at the University.

I have included the attachment of the recommendation form. If you can ask one of the professors at Tottori University Faculty of Medicine to write the recommendation, you are eligible to submit your manuscript.

After it is sure that you are able to get a recommendation, I will instruct you the next step.

Please let me know if you meet the requirement or not.

Best regards,

Dear Kato San,

Thanks for your information.

I had studied and worked in Yonago for 7 years in the Nanba Sensei and Hisatone Sensei Lab from 2004 to 2011. Sure, Hisatome Sensei is the coauthor of the manuscript and would write the recommendation.

Sincerely,
Udin

Dear Udin,

Your manuscript was reviewed by two anonymous referees. Their comments to your manuscript are described below.

When submitting a revised manuscript, please ensure that you submit the following:

- A cover letter in which you respond, point by point, to the referees' comments with numbering, and explain how those issues were addressed
- The manuscript text (including tables and legends for figures, if any) in an MS Word document and a powerpoint figure file, with all insertions indicated in colored font so that the changes you have made can be easily identified. For example, type in red where you modified according to referee A's comments, type in blue where you modified according to referee B's comments, and mark in yellow where you revised by your own idea.

Please overtype on the doc file [6015_to_referees.doc], which I copy-edited and sent you on November 21.

By the way, there is one thing that I would like to confirm.

Was your study approved by the ethics committee in your institution? If so, please describe about it with the approval number in your paper.

Referee A

Judgment: Acceptable after major revision

Comments:

In this paper, the authors examined optimal PCR condition for screening of human APOA1 gene variant. These data described in this paper are potentially interesting, however, following questions need to be addressed by the authors:

- 1) Are there any reports on APOA1 gene mutation shown to cause APOA1 deletion? Although the authors described "APOA1 spans about 2.2kb and contains 4 exons" in introduction, total length of PCR fragments were only 1.2kb from exon2 to exon4. The authors should justify that five amplicons are adequate regions for screening of human APOA1 gene variant.
- 2) The authors should examine PCR-HRM analysis using genomic DNA or plasmid DNA harboring APOA1 gene mutation to evaluate that this method is appropriate for detection of mutant type of APOA1 gene.
- 3) Approval number given from the Institutional Review Board of the Diponegoro University School of Medicine should be described in this manuscript.

Referee B

Judgment: Acceptable after revision

Comments:

In the present manuscript, Wahyuningsih et al. tried to establish reliable PCR conditions for the high resolution melting analysis (HRMA) of APOA1 gene. They tested different annealing temperatures and cycle numbers, and finally determined the optimized conditions to obtain a single PCR product. The manuscript is well written. In addition, this technology would be useful for a genetic screening of patients with HDL deficiency. Therefore, the present manuscript has merit for publication in the Yonago Acta medica, although the following concerns needs to be addressed before it.

(1) Figure 1:

Please remove #1. Or, if the PCR product covers the exon 1, the authors might want to include the results.

(2) MATERIALS AND METHODS. Primer design:

NM_000039 is a number of ref RNA provided by NCBI. In the current study, the authors should use a reference genome sequence such as the GRCh37/hg17 or GRCh38/hg38 human reference sequences.

(3) Table 1:

Nucleotide positions should be shown. For instance, GRCh37/hg19: chr11: 116,708,031-116,708,146 for amplicon #2.

(4) Amplicon 3:

This primer set includes a SNP (rs2070665) locating in the third intron. The authors should discuss to what extent the SNP affect the HRMA.

(5) Amplicon 4A:

It seems to me that this PCR still needs to be optimized, as longer bands were seen in Fig 3BC. The authors should test different conditions to obtain a better result. Or, if the authors think not to need further optimization, rationalize it.

(6) Check and correct grammatical errors and spacing gaps.

Yoko Kato

Dear Udin,

Thank you for sending me the revised manuscript and the cover letter.

Unfortunately, it seems you didn't otype on the doc file named [6015_to_referees.doc], which I copy-edited and sent you on November 21. It is the latest and well-organized one. I'm sorry to ask you, but please otype on the file and send it to me again. The cover letter also needs some modifications along with the changes of pages and lines. I attach the file again just in case.

Also, regarding figures, the editor-in-chief says that scales of line graphs should start with 0 both in x-axis and y-axis, and should be marked at an equal interval. Please revise figures to follow the requirement.

Best regards,
Yoko Kato

Yth. Pak Bahrudin,

Beikut revisi artikel sesuai arahan terakhir..

Untuk bagian skala pada grafik, pada grafik melt curve yang x axis (temperature), setelah angka nol saya cantumkan angka 65.. dari software analisis HRMnya ditampilkan demikian.. mungkin bermaksud menonjolkan bagian melting di sekitar suhu 80-90an.. sebelum suhu tersebut, grafik cenderung flat.. Bagian melt curve ini sebaiknya dibuat sesuai gambar dan skala yang ada atau bagaimana njih Pak?

Mohon saran dan koreksi dari Pak Bahrudin selanjutnya..

Teirma kasih

Salam hormat,
Hesty

Yth. Pak Bahrudin,

Mohon maaf Pak Bahrudin, saya ada yang lupa.. Untuk melt curve yang mulai suhu 65 dC, ternyata dulu ketika running memang saya program ketika memeltingkan DNA dimulai suhu 65 dC.. dengan maksud mengurangi lamanya waktu running, karena pada umumnya melting sekitar suhu 65 dC ke atas..

Terima kasih..

Dear Udin,

Today, I talked about your figures with the editor-in-chief.

He says, as for "Temperature," it is ok that x-axis starts with 65, on the other hand, "Fluorescence" and "Cycle" should start with 0 at each axis.

Please change figures to reflect this comment.

I'm sorry to have confused you.

Best regards,
Yoko Kato

Dear Udin,

Thank you for sending me the revised manuscript and the cover letter.

Unfortunately, it seems you didn't overtype on the doc file named [6015_to_referees.doc], which I copy-edited and sent you on November 21. It is the latest and well-organized one. I'm sorry to ask you, but please overtype on the file and send it to me again. The cover letter also needs some modifications along with the changes of pages and lines. I attach the file again just in case.

Also, regarding figures, the editor-in-chief says that scales of line graphs should start with 0 both in x-axis and y-axis, and should be marked at an equal interval. Please revise figures to follow the requirement.

Best regards,
Yoko Kato

Dear Dr. Udin Bahrudin,
(Cc: Dr. Ichiro Hisatome)

I have attached a PDF proof. Please check it carefully.

We generally require your corrections to be returned within 2 working days. However, if you are not available to reply so soon, let me know when you can reply.

If you have checked your proof carefully, and do not wish to make any corrections, please inform me that it is ok to be published as it is.

I have two worrying points regarding your manuscript, and have included comments that I would like you to confirm.

Dear Kato San,

Thank you for sending the 1st proof.

1. I add the correct link in page 26, and also caption in Fig. 4B. Please see attachment.

2. I think the Figures are uncommonly oversize, they can be displayed in smaller size. I attach a file of Figures with 2 figures in one page instead of 1 fig in every page. If possible, could you please replace with this?

Thank you in advance.

Sincerely,

Udin
